XEM CLIP BÀI GIẢNG

READING 1

The American education system requires that students complete 12 years of primary and secondary education prior to attending university or college. This may be accomplished either at public or government-operated schools, or at private schools. These 12 years of schooling or their equivalent may also be completed outside the USA, thus giving foreign students the opportunity to pursue the benefits of the American education system and obtain a quality American education. Perhaps one of the most impressive facts is that a large number of presidents, prime ministers and leaders from other countries have experienced the American education system and graduated from a university or school in the USA. In many fields and industries, the American education system offers the most cutting-edge, sought-after programs at the world's best schools. That is why graduating from an accredited American school and being exposed to the rigors of the American education system is an investment in your future.

Whether you want to study at a top USA university, a top USA college, a vocational or high school, a thorough understanding of how the American education system works is essential. Without a clear grasp of the American education system, an international student will find it difficult to make the right academic choices. It is no surprise that the American education system and the American school system host more international students than any other country in the world!

In the United States, the cost of a college education can be quite expensive. Undergraduate tuition at a public university can cost between $2,000 and $10,000 a year. That amount rises to between $14,000 and $24,000 a year at a private university. Students must also pay for their course books and stationary. These can cost $500 to $800 per year. Students who live in campus housing pay between $3,500 and $9,000 per year for room and board. Add money for clothes, travel, and other personal expenses, and one year at a university can cost as much as $35,000.

Students, therefore, need to spend their money carefully. At most American universities, advisors help students to plan and stick to a certain budget. They suggest this: At the start of a school semester, write down your income, for example, the money you will get from your family or a part-time job. Then list all of your expenses. Put your expenses into two groups: those that change (food, phone, books, travel), and those that will stay the same (tuition, room and board). Add together all of your expenses. Then, subtract these from your income. Do you have enough money to spend, or do you need more?

Learning to stick to a budget is not always easy; but for many people, it is much easier than borrowing money from family or friends in the middle of a semester.
